Trainor Officially Approved as CompEx Training Provider

Trainor has been formally licensed as an Approved Training Provider (ATP) by CompEx, the global competency standard for hazardous area practitioners. This approval enables Trainor to offer two e-learning courses with official CompEx certification – a significant step in strengthening its global training offering.

Strengthening Safety Through International Standards

CompEx is the leading international certification scheme for practitioners working in potentially explosive atmospheres. It is recognized worldwide by employers and regulatory bodies across industries such as oil, gas, chemicals and manufacturing, and is often a prerequisite for working in high-risk environments.

By becoming an ATP, Trainor joins a select group of providers trusted by CompEx to deliver training that leads to a CompEx qualification. This combines Trainor's expertise in digital learning with CompEx's global credibility, making certified safety training more accessible than ever.

"We're delighted to welcome Trainor as an approved training provider. Their strong reputation for delivering high-quality digital training aligns perfectly with our commitment to innovation and improving accessibility. By joining our global network, Trainor will play a key role in ensuring that people working in hazardous environments continue to receive the highest standards of training and assessment." says Huw Bement, Managing Director at CompEx.

As part of the Apave Group, Trainor already benefits from a strong international network and shared commitment to safety, quality, and innovation. The ATP status from CompEx reinforces Trainor's position as a provider of internationally accredited training and highlights its commitment to delivering high-quality e-learning that meets the evolving needs of global industries.

"This recognition from CompEx is a major milestone for Trainor. It validates the quality of our e-learning solutions and strengthens our position in international markets. We are proud to offer certified training that meets the highest standards of safety and competence." says Stian Martinsen, CEO of Trainor.

CompEx-Certified E-learning Courses

Trainor's e-learning courses have long been trusted by professionals across sectors. With CompEx certification, two of Trainor's most popular courses now carry internationally recognized credentials:

- CompEx Ex Awareness Award – An introductory course providing essential knowledge about explosive atmospheres and basic safety principles.
- CompEx Foundation (ExF) – A comprehensive course designed for technical personnel working in hazardous areas, covering key concepts, regulations, and safety practices.
